

Title:

Is it Art - Instant drawing and the digital darkroom

Word Count:

379

Summary:

Henri Cartier-Bresson is reported to have said after he had given up photography.

^All I care about these days is painting'photography has never been more than a way into paint

Keywords:

photography,art,painting,attitude,aesthetic,opinion,experience

Article Body:

Henri Cartier-Bresson is reported to have said after he had given up photography.

^All I care about these days is painting'photography has never been more than a way into pa

No one disagrees that painting is art, albeit the quality may vary but it is always considered

In part the problem lies with the artist. The discussion about photography is littered knee de

The photographer makes the photograph with their attitudes, opinions, experience and aesthetic

The development of the digital darkroom heralds a new age for photography. Gone are the days o

It is a play ground, don't worry about mistakes it is through them that we learn. As one of th

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>