

Title:

Learn To Paint Like A Child

Word Count:

525

Summary:

There is that small child in all of us ~ an artist inside that holds a perception of the world

Keywords:

paint,draw,talent,ability,color,canvas,oils,watercolors

Article Body:

All children love to draw or paint. It matters little whether the result is an exact copy of

There is that small child in all of us ~ an artist inside that holds a perception of the world

Picasso once said, ^All of my life I have been learning to paint like a child~. Did he succeed

My first recollection of drawing or painting was around the age of ten. By high school I spent

I am still painting in my senior years without the benefit of schooling. There were times when

Often we look at things without really seeing them. After all, our eyes are merely lenses; they

A broken sea-shell has more character than any perfect specimen. Models, just short of perfect

Henri Matisse put it this way: ^Creation begins with vision. The artist has to look at everyth

© 2006 Esther Smith

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>