

Title:

The Road from Saigon. Memories of Vietnam

Word Count:

751

Summary:

An account of the author's experiences whilst living in Vietnam. This story deals with his first

Keywords:

vietnam,saigon,asia,war,travel,viet cong,adventure,photos,photography,flying,combat

Article Body:

I forget why I was in Saigon. I imagine it was to see some girl I'd met before I was posted to All went well down the Bien Hoa highway. It had theoretically three lanes in either direction.
After the highway we passed by rubber plantations of sinister reputation. In the heat of the day
Evening was drawing to a close and the car's radiator started giving cause for trouble. The driver
Part 2

I am able to retain that great British calm in periods of stress. Outwardly it appears admirable
The road that led to Baria had been the scene of a particularly bloody ambush shortly before.
In the camp we had become a little concerned. The Viet Cong were often setting up road blocks
There was a worrying crunching sound and the car came to a halt. Silence. We got out. The car

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>