

Title:

What is HDTV?

Word Count:

581

Summary:

Some satellite TV providers, such as Dish Network, offer HDTV receivers with their packages. E

Keywords:

Dish Network, Satellite TV, Cable TV, Satellite, What is HDTV

Article Body:

Some satellite TV providers, such as Dish Network, offer HDTV receivers with their packages. E

High Definition TeleVision is what HDTV literally means. But high definition compared to what?

Analog TV

30 images per second (in Europe 25) are shown by normal analog TV sets. It does this by writing

HDTV - High Definition TeleVision

HDTV is high resolution Digital TeleVision (DTV) combined with Dolby Digital Surround Sound (A

The difference between Progressive and Interlaced is not difficult. It has to do with how one
Progressive technology manages to show a whole image every 1/60 of a second, resulting in a mu

How Is HDTV Better?

Normal TV has a resolution of about 210.000 pixels. An HDTV screen has a resolution of upto 2.

The aspect ration of normal TV is 4 x 3 (4/3 times wider than high). An HDTV screen has an asp

The Future of HDTV

The FCC (Federal Communications Committee) has mandated that all TV stations in the USA have t

Broadcast companies have to invest on new equipment like cameras, editing equipment, etc.

Cable companies have to convert all of their equipment, including receivers at the homes of th

Consumers may have to buy new equipment, like a top-box to convert digital signals back to ana

HDTV is the future, and a really big step forward. We once started with simple black and white

The need to satisfy older TV sets no longer exists and the much higher quality HDTV is availab

For more free and helpful information on Satellite TV, how to find the best deal, and how to s

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>