

Title:

Getting in the Door: How I got my first Recruiting Job in Boston

Word Count:

753

Summary:

The year 2005 must have been a slow one for recruiting agencies; at least it felt that way as

Keywords:

Boston technical recruiter, technical recruiter, contract staffing, information technology

Article Body:

The year 2005 must have been a slow one for recruiting agencies; at least it felt that way as
My first encounter with a staffing agency had been in 2004, specifically with Creative Financial

So fast forward to 2005

The summer was hot, maybe because I was running around in a nice suite from agency to agency to
I interviewed with Robert Half, where the manager was the biggest ass you will ever meet, his
I interviewed at Winter & Wyman in Waltham (later they tried to directly recruit me) then I went
Then there was Maxim Staffing, they had a hole in the wall office, then to Apex Systems, better
I even interviewed at Time Warner for a collections job! Now I hate collections and anything to
And finally, when I despaired, and decided that maybe the world of recruiting had turned really
So I trained for 5 shifts and on the 6th shift they told me ^sorry buddy, you're not picking t
So here I was, 24 years old, no money, no job, and my Dad was wondering why he just paid an ex
To the rescue came a phone call from Total Technical saying that they wanted to bring me onboa

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>