

Title:

How To Improve Project Delivery through Good Business Requirements

Word Count:

376

Summary:

Creating good business requirements not only assures that the proposed project will address all

Keywords:

Business Analysis, Requirements Engineering, Business Requirements, Business Analysis Training

Article Body:

Creating good business requirements not only assures that the proposed project will address all

Here are some of the key reasons that improved project delivery can be achieved through good b

- You are more likely to receive approval sooner from all stakeholders regarding the intended
- Risks will be identified and mitigated early on in the project lifecycle. This will reduce o
- The design process will take less time and the results will be more accurate. This will also
- The development process will take less time and there will be a less likely chance that key
- It will be easier to test because testers will have used the requirements.
- It will be easier to maintain the system because all processes will be documented.
- It will be easier to change the system in the future because all processes will be documente
- The entire project management process will go smoother because each phase will benefit from
- Communications between all stakeholders and the project team will be improved as the result
- The customer will be more satisfied with the system and more likely to accept the project as
- Cost savings will result from the increase in project development efficiency because staff t
- Increased accountability will result in a smoother development process. Each team member wil

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>