

Title:

Podcasting 101 - The Basics

Word Count:

1319

Summary:

Ever wanted to create your own radio show? Podcasting is the answer. Record your own show fr

Keywords:

podcast hosting, audio, home grown radio

Article Body:

Podcasting has the promise of letting anyone produce their own 'Home Grown Radio Show' and get

But it doesn't mean that it should be hard for anyone with no background in radio or broadcast

Now with that all said, a successful radio host typically always has an engineer nearby. They

It is, however, a double-edged sword. Sure you don't need to do 'live' recording. But most pod

The process of recording your podcast involves recording your voice for dialog, inserting cont

So what do you need to get started? Typically the first thing is a decent computer. Not that y

You'll need some recording software on the computer. There are free programs out there such as

OK, so we have the computer side of this under control. Now what about the recording part? Wel

We would recommend using one of the range of Alesis Podcasting Kits for this. Alesis have bund

As you start to dabble in the art of audio recording, you will encounter a bunch of dials, fac

Once you have all the source material recorded, then you need to 'produce' the show. This mean

You are not quite out of the woods yet. The digital audio that you are recording is going to b

Once done, you will have a MP3 file. Then its time to login to your CyberEars.com account, Upl

Now this is a basic explanation of the journey from idea to recording that isn't rocket scienc

Enjoy!

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>