

Title:

Buying Into Japanese And German Exporters

Word Count:

650

Summary:

With the euro down nearly 15% this year and at a two-year low against the U.S. dollar, the wor

The top lines at leading German industrial companies are rolling in with impressive numbers fo

Keywords:

etf, ishares, investment newsletter, investor newsletter, investing Japan, investing germany

Article Body:

With the euro down nearly 15% this year and at a two-year low against the U.S. dollar, the wor

The top lines at leading German industrial companies are rolling in with impressive numbers fo

Overall, German exports are up for the third-straight month and sales to countries outside of

Meanwhile, U.S. exports are up a paltry 2% since 2000. Although exports to China are up 35% du

Speaking of Japan, the aftermath of the financial bubble has obscured the fact that it too, re

A majority of Japan's exports are manufactured goods and components. Fifty percent of its expo

Much is made over China's huge trade imbalance with America, which reached $126 billion in the

How do they do it? First, the Japanese are continually moving up the value-added curve and are

Secondly, even though China's wages are about 5% of Japan's, factory automation has lessened t

Perhaps most important, there is the critical issue of protecting intellectual capital. Having

Canon, Sharp, Hitachi, NEC and Toyota are all good plays on Japan's manufacturing edge, while

The iShares MSCI Japan Index exchange-trade fund is an attractive option, since it has about 5

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>