When looking for long term care facility for a loved one in Missouri, there are a few questions

What type of facility do I need?: There are several types of facilities, be sure to select one

Residential Care Facility I: Will provide shelter, board and supervision. They may distribute

Residential Care Facility II: Provides same care as a level I, plus provides dietary supervision

Intermediate Care Facility: Provides personal care, board and basic health and nursing services

Skilled Nursing Facility: Individuals in Skilled Nursing facilities require 24 hour care and services

Questions to ask the facility:

Can it meet the needs of my loved one?

Is it currently licensed?

How much does it cost and will they accept my insurance?

Are the current residents happy and treated with dignity?

Is the facility clean? How does it smell?

Resident's rights: Missouri residents who live in a state licensed long term care facility are

You must be informed of your rights and responsibilities as a resident (oral and written)

You must be told of services available and costs

You must receive notice before a change in room or roommate

You may purchase or rent goods/services not included in the facility rate.
