

Title:

Stark Rise In Car Insurance Premiums

Word Count:

443

Summary:

The stark rise in car insurance and business car insurance premiums, which was predicted by No

Keywords:

car insurance, insurance, car, auto, finance, business

Article Body:

The stark rise in car insurance and <http://www.autonetinsurance.co.uk/car-insurance/>

One of the UK's biggest car insurers, Norwich Union had stated that in 2007 premiums would hav

The reason given for the halt in premium rates was the much fiercer competition engendered bet

Typically, the report stated, UK drivers paid an average of £594 for fall comprehensive car co

The data also revealed that car insurance for third party, fire and theft could also be cheape

However there are other factors, which may have affected the accuracy of these statistics.

According to a recent article in The Guardian Money Column, the exact circumstances of each dr

It has also been noted that often the cheapest of the insurers can subsidise their premiums by

Interestingly, the consumer body icon Which? Discovered that insurance premiums could reduce b

The organisation also suggests that even if only third party, fire and theft is being consider this type of cover may not cost much more, and it may be well worth paying the difference in c

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>