

Title:

Tea and Time

Word Count:

511

Summary:

Tea and time have something in common. They both begin with letter "T". There is a reason for

Keywords:

Article Body:

Tea and time have something in common. They both begin with letter "T". There is a reason for

To enjoy tea, we need to take time.

First of all, even before the steeping starts, we observe the tea leaves. Leaves from different

Second, you pour hot water into the cup. You don't just sit and wait (and getting bored and ev

Steeping is also about timing. Not too long, not too short. The timing depends on our individu

Finally, we don't gulp a cup of tea as we do with a can of soda. We sip. Before we sip, we obs

It all takes time. All the good things in life take time to brew and to enjoy.

Time is the most precious thing. It is also most constant thing as well. We can't get more of

A Chinese proverb says it all, ^Hurry and impatience prevents the enjoyment of hot tofu.~

You may ask, what about the need for speed and convenience?

Yes, they are some times our friends. They are the propellers of civilization and evolution fr

But there is a limit. Overdose of speed and convenience can and have already hurt our quality

It may be time to slow down a little bit and to get back to the basic of life. Tea can help in

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>