A grave headstone is a stone marker placed at the head of the grave, otherwise known as the tombstone.

Many cemetery will perform standard ground maintenance, such as moving the lawn and plowing dirt.

An additional concern with cemeteries and gravestones is that they are not always guaranteed to last.

A strong and durable gravestone is not only a good protection against vandalism and destruction.

When an individual passes on and a grave headstone is purchased, an epitaph is usually carved into the stone.

Picking out and purchasing a grave headstone is an important decision. That stone will forever mark the spot.
