

Title:

Prevent Pests From Pigging Out In Your Pantry

Word Count:

358

Summary:

Most people would agree that the kitchen is the last place they want to encounter beetles, moths,

Keywords:

Prevent Pests From Pigging Out In Your Pantry

Article Body:

Most people would agree that the kitchen is the last place they want to encounter beetles, moths,

Few homeowners realize that, despite all efforts to keep kitchens clean and pest-free, some pests

Experts refer to them as "stored product pests" or "occasional invaders," but homeowners call

According to experts at Orkin, Inc., virtually no items in your kitchen can escape infestation

Pantry pests normally gravitate toward whole and processed grains such as flour, meal and rice

Pantry pests are often carried into your kitchen via infested, store-bought foods. Others invade

"Many of these persistent pests can find food in your home by gnawing through cereal boxes and

These food-infesting pests are usually not the source of significant health threats for homeowners

Following these tips can help prevent pantry pest infestations:

&#8226; Store foods in tightly sealed containers that keep pests out. Remember that some pests

&#8226; Inspect food storage areas regularly; use a flashlight to peek in dark, undisturbed corners

&#8226; Clean pantry and cabinet shelves and floors thoroughly. Use a vacuum to pick up crumbs

However, if pests continue to feast on foods in your kitchen, trust a licensed pest control company

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>