The sheer horror of imagining your son or daughter being victimized by a child predator is enough to

1. Missing child prevention. The key to protecting children is prevention. The first step you can take is to ensure your child is always accounted for.
2. Beware of the Internet. If you've ever watched Dateline NBC's "To Catch a Predator," you've seen how easily children can be lured into a predator's trap.
3. Prepare for the worst. Unfortunately, the unthinkable can happen, so it's worth your while to take every precaution possible.
