Aside from being a fun hobby, what is the point of having a blog? The answer is to draw readers.

First of all, to increase readership you would want to increase the number of pages each reader reads.

A second tip for increasing your blog readership is to think about doing a series. A series is a set of related posts.

Another way to increase readership is a little more ^controversial~ if you will. You can try posting controversial topics.

Finally, if you really want to build and increase readership, you have to have good quality content.

Having a blog can not only be fun, but if you are doing it right it can also be profitable. Earnings can come from advertising, affiliate marketing, or selling products.
