It is no secret that the success of your Internet Marketing Business is to a great extent dependent on how you treat your website visitors.

The disappointment and frustration the visitors experience sometimes is such that they vow never to return.

Given below are specific situations that visitors encounter when surfing the internet hoping to find what they need.

1. Instruct your website visitors to register before entering your site without giving them any reason.
2. Have an Audio sound track on your home page and compel him to listen to your rhetoric without giving him any choice.
3. Ensure that your website has graphics and multimedia and will take at least one minute to download.
4. Once your website visitor is in, confuse him without providing him with concise and clear information. Also do not provide him opportunities to explore your site and go back to where he came from by using a search engine.
5. Keep changing frequently the location of features in your site making your regular Internet Marketing visitors confused.
6. Do not update contents on your website. Have old or stale Internet Marketing contents without updating them. This is not only inactive but also dishonest.
7. Have plenty of Typos and grammar mistakes. Make it difficult to read both text wise and color wise.
8. Plaster your web page with Internet Marketing banners, advertisements and pop ups thus irritating your visitors.
9. Do not check your website for broken links. Have plenty of broken links and error messages.
10. Finally as your website visitors are about to leave your site, serve an exit Ad. and ensure they do not return.

When a website visitor is confronted with this type of situation it is nothing but natural to leave. There are millions of websites in the internet. There is no reason why the visitor should hang around.

To counter these problems and make money from your website visitors, correct your errors, update your website and provide a good user experience.
