

Title:

Avoiding Online Paid Surveys Scams

Word Count:

837

Summary:

The bottom line is, if the hype for online paid surveys sounds too good to be true, it likely

Testimonials - Ropers and shills typically write these for scams, not satisfied customers.

Documented Proof - Some questionable paid survey sites provide checks and other documental rep

Keywords:

Work, Home, Legitimate, Opportunity, Free, Absolutely

Article Body:

The bottom line is, if the hype for online paid surveys sounds too good to be true, it likely

Testimonials - Ropers and shills typically write these for scams, not satisfied customers.

Documented Proof - Some questionable paid survey sites provide checks and other documental rep

Guarantees - Don't believe guarantees that promise the Moon. paid survey sites can't possibly

Reliable- and Trusted-Site Logos - Some questionable paid survey sites display these logos to

The "fine print" at questionable paid survey sites often contradicts much of what their hype i

Perform "whois" lookups to reveal if paid survey sites were registered by proxy. If so, be war

Check with the BBB for complaints against specific online paid survey sites and their owners.

Browse scam forums, such as Scam.com and RipOffReport.com, for messages from consumers who thi

For more information about avoiding scams, see the consumer advice from the FTC and BBB. But,

If you've been ripped-off by online paid survey scams, as indicated you may file complaints wi

One of the questions I get most often is how to tell whether a work from home job posting is a

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>