The core of the eBay experience is the auction concept where individual Sellers put items up for

Many times you will have nothing to go on and you will have to place your trust in the eBay Seller

EBay has some useful tools to help you qualify the Seller ahead of time. The first and most valuable

Mostly these feedback comments will praise fast shipping or the successful completion of the purchase

The most important feedbacks to look for are negative feedbacks. These are easy to spot. First

If the Positive Feedback rating is less than 100% you should take a look at the actual Feedback

Next look at the Feedbacks Received section, here is where you will find the actual comments left

The next thing to look for is the eBay Power Seller logo. This is a logo that eBay awards to sellers

Another thing to watch out for is a recent eBay name change or a new eBay seller with little or no

Be wary of new sellers, and be very wary of Sellers who have recently changed their eBay name.

Finally, one of the best ways to judge a Seller is to ask the Seller a question. Good Sellers

EBay is a great market place and one of the most enjoyable places to shop online, but you do have to

- Look for Negative Feedbacks and be sure to read through them to see what the problems were.
- Look for the Power Seller Logo.
- Watch out for new Sellers and stay away from Sellers who have recently changed their eBay name.
- Ask the Seller a question. There is nothing like communicating directly with a Seller to set

There is no guarantee that you will find the perfect seller, but by using these recommended steps
