Article Body:

Dial up connection is still the most popular way for people to get online. Basic requirements

Though it is the most widely used form of internet connection there are some basic requirements

Consider asking these questions before subscribing -

- 1) How many numbers are you getting from your ISP for access? Are the numbers provided by your ISP
- 2) Do they support your modem type ? Modems use different technologies. So even with a 56kbps
- 3) What are the different packages available ? Some providers offer unlimited accounts. Some offer
- 4) What are the softwares needed to be installed (if at all). Do you have to pay extra for this
- 5) What are the platforms supported by the service ? If you are not running windows , then do
- 6) What is the experience of existing users ? Are they satisfied with the service ? Some providers

Consider all these things and go for the one that suits your needs best.

Good luck with your dial-up hunting !!
