Yes, you can do it, it is not at all expensive and difficult.

To the contrary, the cost to build your property can be a very small fraction of the value it

Because the cost is low and fixed, but the value depends mostly if not entirely on you.

It is similar to owning a big ground for a small price, and being able to build on it whatever

This is what the internet allows you to do.

In fact, for setting up your web site you need:

1) To define a name for it. This will be your "domain name".

This is your choice, the only important point is that the name must be new, not already used b

Of course you will want to choose a name that is attractive and easy to remember.

2) A service called "hosting", that will serve as the ground where your site will find space,

These are the things you "buy". It is a really small investment.

Then you need to build the content, and this is entirely up to you. Some easy "building techni
