```

Another solution is to use this following:

```
ErrorDocument 404/foo/index.php?error=404
```

foo = the directory you are using as a blog. The structure should be like this:

```
/foo/%category%/%postname%/
```

If you call a nonexistent directory, however, you're still going to get that 404 permalink.

You can automate your permalinks tasks with several plugins, though. The Ultimate Tag Warrior
