We often hear about the many thousands of locations where you can find a Wal-Mart, or a Target

I remember when many of us first got online circa 1997. There were only 17% of Americans online

Within a few short years, Amazon-com had become the biggest bookstore in history with literally

But those giant retailers that the media always points to aren't the real story. From day one,

Instead of going to Wal-Mart and choosing one of the three products they offered in the category

Take something like jewelry. Wal-Mart (and I only use them as an example because they're in print)

And because most online stores are largely virtual, their costs are extremely low. That means

There was a time when people thought they couldn't judge a product unless they could hold it in

So give yourself a fun online shopping spree today. You'll get products your neighbors can't find
