Article Body:

United Airlines (UAL) recently announced that it will be charging customers twenty-five dollars

Right now you can check two bags, each weighing fifty pounds for free. Anything more and you

You are also allowed one, maybe two, carry-on bags. This also depends on the size, weight, and

This additional tariff will not affect Mileage Plus or Star Alliance customers. And, from what

Supposedly, this will discourage passengers from bringing an additional bag, making the plane

As a frequent traveler, I can personally say that I will do my very best to avoid flying on United

I think if all travelers shout loud enough, the airline will be forced to stop this silliness.

First, the airlines took away your in-flight meal. Now, we have the additional luggage tax.

Some may say that getting rid of the airline food is a good thing. But charging five bucks for

I work for the US government and we are required to fly on American carriers. I understand that

So, if I am forced to fly American and get stuck on United, I will do everything in my power to

We need to band together and refuse to pay this fee. Otherwise, the airlines will start charging

If you have a choice between United and any other airline, please choose the other carrier.
