The franchise for the Lakers was first started in Detroit before it was moved to Minneapolis. The Lakers team was first created back in 1944 when Morris Chalfen and Ben Berger decided that George Mikan wasn't the only player that would help to bring greatness to the Lakers. Vern Mikan Even with this success the Lakers they always seemed to be thwarted by one team - the Boston Celtics. Fans were sure that the Lakers would finally secure their win against the Celtics in 1972 when Under Coach Pat Riley the Lakers were able to head to the championship finals eight times during their reign. Even though they were able to make it once again to the championship finals in 1991 they spent
