

Title:

Our Love Of Racing

Word Count:

605

Summary:

There's something about our human nature that enjoys being competitive. It is built within us

This nature is very profound in athletes but we all have it to some degree. We are naturally c

In spo...

Keywords:

racing,sports,competition,cars,running

Article Body:

There's something about our human nature that enjoys being competitive. It is built within us

This nature is very profound in athletes but we all have it to some degree. We are naturally c

In sports, we usually always are supportive of a person or team even if we don't like sports c

It's funny to see people who are typically quiet and in self-control go crazy and lose it at t

It is all psychological really. It gives us a good feeling inside. It's like "virtual racing"

We are addicted to this feeling of wanting to be the winner in the various "races" of life. We

We love to be winners and everyone loves a winner. Being winners makes us feel better about ou

In order to race effectively, we have to properly train and direct our inner feelings of anxie

We need the anxiety in order to maintain a racing state of mind. If we did not have anxiety th

The person in the stands watching also helps to increase the energy level in the racing enviro

We all must have goals in order to accomplish anything in life. We need set them, practice the

For all of us, there is nothing to compare to winning. Even if we don't win, we love the thrill

And it's not just racing. More than likely the swimming teams, track star fans, and downhill s

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>