Graduate School Search Made Easy

Know your objectives ~ The first step to finding the right program through a graduate school search is to know your objectives.

Consult an online graduate school search guide ~ Before you can narrow down your selection, you need to consult an online graduate school search guide.

Narrow your options ~ Once you have obtained the information from the various schools you contacted, you need to narrow your options.

Contact existing students ~ Now that you have a smaller pool of options, consider contacting existing students at the schools you are considering.

Visit the campus ~ Along with making telephone or internet contact with the schools you are considering, you should also visit the campus.

Re-evaluate your choices ~ Once you have a more personal view of each graduate program, take time to re-evaluate your choices.

Sleep on it awhile ~ Whether or not you believe you have found the right graduate school program, it's a good idea to sleep on it awhile.
