

Title:

Lots of High School Choices in the New York City Schools

Word Count:

576

Summary:

If you have a child now in elementary or middle school, live or plan to live in New York City,

Keywords:

New York City Schools

Article Body:

Looking for a high school for your child that concentrates on preparing for higher academics?

If you have a child now in elementary or middle school, live or plan to live in New York City,

Three of these New York City schools have been around for the better part of the last century.

To enroll your child, a New York City schools exam is given in December of the school year prior.

In order to take the New York City schools exam, your child needs a permission slip from a guardian.

Each specialized school has its own score requirements. Stuyvesant has the highest score requirements.

All three New York City schools want only the best and the brightest students; however, they do accept students with lower scores.

A fourth top academic school is Townsend Harris, located on the Queens College campus. Townsend Harris is a public school.

Any New York City schools student is eligible for these four top academic schools, but one other school is also available.

Staten Island Tech focuses on mathematics and science, as well as architecture and drawing. CUNY Staten Island Tech is a public school.

This information on New York City schools is brought to you by www.schoolsk-12.com.

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>