

Title:

The Journey of a Dying Patient

Word Count:

945

Summary:

Hospice patients come to our care after being cut, burned, and poisoned. Surgery, chemotherapy

Keywords:

death, dying, resources, and, soul, spirit, sam, oliver

Article Body:

Hospice patients come to our care after being cut, burned, and poisoned. Surgery, chemotherapy

Hospice care is a phase of care whereby aggressive treatment is no longer appropriate. Palliat

The purpose of this article is to claim that much more can be done. Our Doctors and Nurses are

The Heart of Care

The heart of care centers it's attention on the needs of the patient who is dying. Any attempt

Patients are not a disease. Patients are awakening into soul. Mary was a strong-willed person

About two weeks before Mary died, she shared with me that she became aware of two identities:

The Heart of Compassion

A dying patient gives up so much in their dying that he/she is tempted to hold on to what is l

As a person dies, their personality will give way to their soul. In the process, a heart is br

Funeral services remind us, it is the soul of a person that draw us to face death and not the

An Awakened Heart

An awakened heart knows there is more to life than what appears on the surface.

Dying people lead us to this place where eternal relationships are forged into the deepest asp

A year ago, I gave a talk for the National Hospice and Palliative Care Organization in Los Ang

In the landscape of the soul, what matters in life IS NOT matter. When we begin to look throug

As we grow in our capacity to see from within, we enter into the heart of grief. This emergenc

Samuel Oliver, author of, "What the Dying Teach Us: Lessons on Living"

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>