

Title:

Dangerous Children In A Dangerous World

Word Count:

842

Summary:

Juvenile violent crime rates increased 62% from 1988 to 1993, and then declined by just 6% from

Keywords:

violence, youth violence, prevention, treatment, youth, risk, offending, teen, teenager, child

Article Body:

Juvenile violent crime rates increased 62% from 1988 to 1993, and then declined by just 6% from

Youth with histories of aggression often have families that abuse or neglect them, expose them

If local community standards favor the use of drugs and firearms, and if there is an acceptanc

The families of violent children are often aggressive or neglectful, with problem behaviors, w

Troubled teens often experience academic failure as early as elementary school. As a result, t

Success and positive self-worth are universal needs. When children fail to find these at home

If you look at the reverse of the above risk factors, you will find the conditions that have t

There is no one factor that predicts youth violence. It is the combination of more risk factor

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>