

Title:

Deadly Freedom: Inventing Hope In Dark Times

Word Count:

828

Summary:

Totalitarianism has been tried many times and it essentially fails because human beings will i

This deadly freedom, embedded in a mix of popular aspirations that are inherently conservative

Keywords:

freedom, contemporary society, hope, the future

Article Body:

Totalitarianism has been tried many times and it essentially fails because human beings will i

This deadly freedom, embedded in a mix of popular aspirations that are inherently conservative

What has this freedom got us? A mortgage? Unfulfilling jobs and confused relationships? Enviro

Hope

Elie Wiesel, a Nobel Peace prize winner and award winning author, in a recent interview with T

Hope, however, is elusive and needs to be nurtured. It does not spring up sui generis and Wies

^I believe mysticism is a very serious endeavor. One must be equipped for it. One doesn't stud

Freedom gets in the way of this rootedness in tradition and this is why so many non-western so

Five Points

Traditions are sources of deep transformative power. There are five things you will find at th

Firstly, there is love. Wake up each morning and wait for an explosion of love to course throu

Secondly, there is energy. All traditions are sources of energy, they carry energy from the pa

Thirdly, there is discipline. Traditions embody discipline; they enable it and make it OK to b

Fourth, and emerging from the previous condition, there is purpose. Our lives need a purpose t

Finally, there is passion. When purpose is activated we become passionate individuals. We exud

Listen to the world; hear it groan, hear it sing. In listening we become still enough to hear

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>