

Title:

Facial Hair As It Is Found In Cultures Around The World

Word Count:

415

Summary:

Facial hair is a secondary sex characteristic in human males. Most men develop facial hair in Male pogonotrophy (the growing of facial hair; beardedness) is often culturally associated with

Keywords:

facial hair, hair

Article Body:

Facial hair is a secondary sex characteristic in human males. Most men develop facial hair in
Male pogonotrophy (the growing of facial hair; beardedness) is often culturally associated with Women typically have little hair on their faces, apart from eyebrows and the fine fuzz nearly Abraham Lincoln was said to have grown a beard because a little girl wrote him that he would Everyone has facial hair, men and women of all ethnic backgrounds. Actually, most people have
In most cultures it is perfectly acceptable to have thick and large amounts of facial hair if

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>