

Title:

Laudium and Its Lurid Facts

Word Count:

509

Summary:

A vivid description of Laudium, an Indian township in South Africa with information about where

Keywords:

laudium,community,south,africa

Article Body:

Laudium is a residential area in Centurion, South Africa, which was proclaimed an Indian township.

The original name for Laudium was Claudius, named after a Claudius Marais de Vries who was the

Although unusual for a township yet, Laudium is a relatively wealthy area with very large houses.

There are a variety of restaurants, including Mohideen's, Muchachos, Debonairs, Nandos and Wimpy.

Due to the fact that the majority of the residents of Laudium are Muslims, all food stores sell halal.

Laudium has a quite a number of government schools. These government schools mostly consist of Laudium Sun newspaper is a free, bi-monthly that serves Laudium. It also has a Muslim-oriented Laudiuminfo gives you a deeper insight into all these facts, history and development of Laudium.

Apart from this you can also participate in Discussion Boards and Forums with free registration.

The website contains a Business Directory wherein you can find all information related to the

Although community isolation and crime are a major hindrance in the prospect of Laudium's progress.

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>