None of the above, it would seem.

If it is the past year that we are commemorating, would we still drink to it if we were to rec

Because it is not the past that is foremost on our minds. Our birthdays are about the future,

But, if this were true, surely as we grow older we have less and less cause to celebrate. What

Thus, we are forced into the conclusion that birthdays are about self-delusionally defying dea

And, more often than not, it works. Happy birthday!
