

Title:

Life Advice: A Lost Friend Speaks

Word Count:

496

Summary:

A dying friend taught me how to live my life. Read a short summary of his teachings here.

Keywords:

life advice,motivational,inspirational,motivation,inspiration,self help,self improvement

Article Body:

When my friend sensed that in a few weeks the light of life was about to be extinguished, and

- 1) Talk less; listen more.
- 2) Listen to your grandfather's stories about his youth. When he's gone, you will relive the b
- 3) Invite friend over for a snack or dinner even if the house is a mess.
- 4) Eat popcorn in the living room even though its messy.
- 5) Invite the friends who have children home. Don't worry about their children creating a mess
- 6) Sit on the grass even though it dirties your pants.
- 7) Never buy something just because it lasts for a long time or because it is practical.
- 8) Stay in bed and at home when sick and stop pretending that the world cannot go one without
- 9) Light up the wonderfully crafted candles and let them burn out. Better this than they accum
- 10) Share life's responsibilities with a partner, not only expenses.
- 11) (Meant for Women) Instead of waiting for the pregnancy to get over, cherish each moment in
- 12) Let your children hug and kiss you whenever they wish to. Don't stop them by saying things
- 13) Say the following two phrases as often as possible: "I love you" and "I am sorry."
- 14) Stop worrying about who loves or and who doesn't or about what others have or don't have.
- 15) Cherish all personal human relations.
- 16) Play with a pet every day. Laugh and run with it and take part in all its antics.
- 17) Spend more time with the people who love you.
- 18) Stop sweating because of all the small details and problems of life.
- 19) Grab every moment, look at it and live it. That moment will never return again.

Her name was Susan, and she had one six year old daughter. Susan taught me these few basic ide

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>
Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>