Camping is a great past time or mini vacation that can be enjoyed as an individual, as a couple

State parks are great for camping when they are less crowded during the weekdays, but on the weekends

The best way to plan a camping trip to a state park is to first select which state park you want to visit

Campers love these state park passes because it allows them easy access to a fantastic facility

Many of these state parks also offer electric, water and garbage or dump stations for your convenience

For many of those outdoor enthusiasts, no summer is complete without spending quality time in the outdoors

It's important to show respect for all amenities in the state park, camp responsibly, and clean up after yourself
