Article Body:

In 2004, I completed two Inuit art buying trips to Iqaluit (formerly Frobisher Bay), the capital of Nunavut.

There is only one high rise building in Iqaluit and it is used mainly for local Nunavut government offices. There are many cars, trucks, SUVs, and other vehicles and people. During the summers, Iqaluit can get quite dusty with all the vehicles turning up.

One thing that was very noticeable in Iqaluit was the large numbers of children everywhere. Most of them were Inuit.

I had the opportunity to walk about 30 minutes to the outskirts of town past the airport one day.
