The high travel season is at the corner now. People from all walks of life around the world are here.

Here I would like to emphasize one vitally important thing, which is a must to remember when booking a trip.

Much has been written on the importance of having insurance coverage while you are on a trip, but, reality urges us to believe traveling anywhere in the world without protection today, is not safe.

Let's say, you have been planning the trip of your dreams for a long time; you have finally found the perfect destination.

You are so excited! You have thought of all the details. You have been actively preparing for your trip.

Your trip can really be an unforgettable experience from start to the end, on one condition.

When booking your trip, you should have remembered that, like most exciting events in our lives, there are risks.

Your baggage and/or your hand bag with your money, passport, credit cards in, can be stolen or lost.

No one can guarantee that a natural disaster would not happen at the place you would be staying.

An unexpected accident, injury or illness would suddenly ruin everything. In fact, in the recent past, in such a frustration, the only thing you would have needed to survive was a reliable medical insurance.

Especially in the light of the horrible threats on and after September 11 terrorist attacks, travel insurance is a must.

Therefore, if you have to cancel a trip, it's likely that a big portion of your pre-paid travel expenses will be lost.

Recent SARS and bird flu threats have also been urging travelers and vacationers to seriously consider travel insurance.

Travel insurance types and prices defer from one travel insurance provider to another.

You have to review, compare and select the best offers to suit your personal needs.

For instance, some insurance providers do not offer coverage outside the U.S.A. Some companies do not cover pre-existing conditions.

Some airlines do not accept to be held responsible for the acts of God, weather problems, natural disasters, etc.
