

Title:

9 Japanese Automakers

Word Count:

491

Summary:

There are nine Japanese automakers in the world. Only two are independent, six are partly owned

Keywords:

Toyota parts, Mazda parts, Acura parts, discount auto parts, car parts, Mitsubishi, Lexus, Infiniti

Article Body:

Japanese built and designed cars have flooded the North American market for over forty years now.

Toyota ~ The second largest automaker in the world is Toyota, maker of the Camry, the Corolla

Honda ~ The Accord and the Civic are Honda's two most well known models, followed by the Nissan ~ Drive a Datsun and then decide. Up until the early 1980s, Nissan's North American

Mitsubishi ~ Originally imported exclusively by Chrysler, Mitsubishi began to sell cars

Mazda ~ The Tribute, Miata, and the ^6~ are some of the most well known Mazda models. The Subaru ~ Think all wheel drive and you may just think Subaru. The Forester, Outback, and

Suzuki ~ 20% owned by General Motors, Suzuki is as noted for producing cars as it is for

Isuzu ~ Did someone say General Motors? Again, GM owns a stake in Isuzu. At one time Isuzu

Daihatsu ~ The Charade and Rocky were two models introduced by Daihatsu when the car company

So, there you have it: there are nine Japanese automakers, two of which are still independent.

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>