

Title:

Now It Is Ford Motors Turn

Word Count:

1431

Summary:

It has happened again, and again in a very big way. I am sure you have heard the news that General Motors has started announcing they will be "cutting back" and will have more to say about it in the future. The manufacturing sector of our economy is the one sector that provides for our society in any way. Most manufacturing jobs provide up to nine other jobs in the local economy. Think about the local economy. And with fewer products being produced, suppliers and their employees are affected in the local economy. What of our younger generations that are coming up through school. What direction do they take? These are tough situations and difficult questions. These actions affect us whether we live near a factory or not. There are some individuals who had some foresight and started a home based business that provides a monthly residual income. For those that did not have a home based business and consequently no monthly residual income, they are in a bind. As independent adults that are getting caught in this layoff trap and having less and less security. First, hopefully those employees getting laid off have put back some savings. After all, this is a tough situation. Second, take a real hard look at what areas you would be able to trim, immediately if you have a home based business. Third, write down your plans. This is so important. Set some short term goals that will help you survive. Once you have it all written down, talk to your spouse, or if a single parent, talk to your children. Keep in mind that this has happened to people and families in the past and it will be experienced again. Situations have a way of correcting themselves in time, but usually not without some direct intervention. Remember, this is not the worst thing that could have happened. If you were not ready for this situation, you are in a bind. And if you do not have a side business, a home based business, or a part time business, realize that you are in a bind.

Keywords:

layoff, ford motors, manufacturing, home business, family discussions, budgeting.

Article Body:

It has happened again, and again in a very big way. I am sure you have heard the news that General Motors has started announcing they will be "cutting back" and will have more to say about it in the future. The manufacturing sector of our economy is the one sector that provides for our society in any way. Most manufacturing jobs provide up to nine other jobs in the local economy. Think about the local economy. And with fewer products being produced, suppliers and their employees are affected in the local economy. What of our younger generations that are coming up through school. What direction do they take? These are tough situations and difficult questions. These actions affect us whether we live near a factory or not. There are some individuals who had some foresight and started a home based business that provides a monthly residual income. For those that did not have a home based business and consequently no monthly residual income, they are in a bind. As independent adults that are getting caught in this layoff trap and having less and less security. First, hopefully those employees getting laid off have put back some savings. After all, this is a tough situation. Second, take a real hard look at what areas you would be able to trim, immediately if you have a home based business. Third, write down your plans. This is so important. Set some short term goals that will help you survive. Once you have it all written down, talk to your spouse, or if a single parent, talk to your children. Keep in mind that this has happened to people and families in the past and it will be experienced again. Situations have a way of correcting themselves in time, but usually not without some direct intervention. Remember, this is not the worst thing that could have happened. If you were not ready for this situation, you are in a bind. And if you do not have a side business, a home based business, or a part time business, realize that you are in a bind.

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>

