The most important thing to consider when attempting a park between two vehicles is safety first.

Approaching a vehicle ahead of you, parked on the side of the roadway should be done and planned.

As you pull along side the spot that you are attempting to park, pause, and make a decision on whether to attempt.

Look out the back passenger window and check if you can see the tail end corner of the vehicle.

Now is the time to make the maneuver into the parking spot. First we have to do some safety preparations.

Once the safety checks are all done, and you can see the tail end of the vehicle beside you. Move forward.

Change gears and move forward with you're foot on the brake, keeping in mind, the wheels of the vehicle.

This driving technique has worked for my students in the past, and I still use it. Vehicles have been parked.
