

Title:

Protecting Vehicles From Theft

Word Count:

386

Summary:

What does DNA have in common with vehicle etching? More than you might think. Both have a unique

Keywords:

Protecting Vehicles From Theft

Article Body:

What does DNA have in common with vehicle etching? More than you might think. Both have a unique

Vehicle etching and DNA labels refer to a system that applies a car owner's specific and unique

&#8226; Owners apply an etching stencil to the outside, lower corners of windows and add an et

&#8226; DNA labels are placed on car parts such as doorjambs, hoods and trunks, in places that

The idea is that when a vehicle is etched, its parts are less valuable to a car thief because

A do-it-yourself kit, The Club DNA Vehicle Etching System, has been developed by Winner Intern

The company recommends people use the etching system in conjunction with a steering wheel lock

This is a demo version of txt2pdf v.10.1

Developed by SANFACE Software <http://www.sanface.com/>

Available at <http://www.sanface.com/txt2pdf.html>